THE EMPEROR IS THANKED. A very amusing chapter in the history of official stiquette in China might be written ander the heading of "The Emperor is Thanked." Many years ago, he present writer was acquainted with a cortain pedagogue, part of whose system of education consisted in extorting the formula "thank you, Sir," from his pupils. in reply to any question or remark of whatsoover nature that might be addressed to them. . If he asked a pupil what the time was--- "Half-past two, Sir, thank you," was the correct rejoinder; and the same expression of gratitude was enforced even in acknowledgment of a severe rabuke or the imposition of a task. We may be permitted to doubt whether this practice was conducive to any very high standard of sincerity in the schoolboy mind, and to ask how much real value was attached to the compulsory employment of a formula so servile. The schoolmaster, however, was supported by a precedent of no small authority, had he only known it. The constitutional maxim of "the king can do no wrong" might be translated into the official language of China, "the Emperor can do nothing: that is not benevolent." It is entertaining to study the circumstances under which thanks and offered to his Majesty, and the strange inversion of thought and language by which every relation between the Emperor and the subject is made to appear in the light of fivours bestowed and reocived. Every edict is a Benign Mandate, which it is an honour, a privilege, an not of grace, to be permitted to abov. This theory extends even to the infliction of punishments. When, some years ago, the boy-Emperor Tang Chih, in a fit of passion, thought proper to degrade his uncle from the first to the second degree of Imperialrank, the Prince humbly thanked His Majesty for permitting him still to exercise his function as a Grand Counciller. When roinstated on the following day, His Imperial Highness thanked the Emperor in still more grateful terms; and, two days after, on the receipt of a bowl of bird'snest soup, his gratitude could only find expression in a flood of tears. It may be doubted, however, whether the weeping of Princo King Indo-China Steam Navigation Co. upon this affecting occasion was of a less Par, nominal. ceremonial nature than the performance of Hongkong Gas Company's Shar hired women who wail and howl at funerals. The Imperial wish for the retirement of an Hongkong Hotel Company's Sharesofficial who is unpopular at Court is generally anticipated by the mandarin himself, who, China Sugar Refining Company, Limited-$155 in a Memorial teeming with unpleasantly. graphic details of some imaginary complaint, China Sugar Reflaing Company (Debentures)implores the Emperor to let him remain in private life, comparing his fidelity to that of a dog | Luzon Sugar Rolling Company, Limited-$11. or a horse, and vowing that when his health is per shere. re-cetablished he will be readior even than Hongkong-Ice Company's Shares-3131 per either of those useful domestic animals to roll . his head in the dust and die in his master's Hongkong and China Bakery Company, Limited service. Only a Chinese Imperial Loan of 1878-2 percent. prom. few weeks ago, the sminent statesman Pao Chinese Imperial Loan of 1881-3 per cont. prom. ting implored the Emperor in most moving tarms to permit him to retire; the Emperor refosed, sharply reproving him for ingratitude, and the snabbed official meekly thanked his Majesty for not acceding to his request. The gift of a far-cloak, especially when the far round the nack of the animal is retained and made up, is another and more comprehensible occasion for thanksgiving; and so is the permission to ride on horseback through certain portions of the Imperial encloure, which are sacred ground as regards less favoured servants of the Throne. One of the most amusing insidents in connection with this practice of perpetual thanksgiving occurred not very long ago. A Manchu officer of high rank, no less a personage indeed than Wulabsich'ungah, President of the Board of Caremonies, returned thanks for the honour of having been invited to a saurificial feast by the Emperor. Next day, however, a terrible snubbing was administered to Wulsheich ungah. The Emperor had received his expression of gratitude with astonishment, for as it happened, he had never been invited to the feast at all! "His name," says the Decree, "does not appear in the list of guests approved of by Us, and in thus thanking Us he has been guilty of a great piece of carelessness."
